Michael Stegner . . .

has taught private lessons, group lessons and school classrooms since 1996. Over the past eight years his students have accepted over one million dollars in scholarships to most prestigious schools in the U.S. for jazz, classical, music production, and composition/songwriting. His former students have led their own groups at jazz festivals around the globe. Michael has presented at four national MTNA conventions as well as several state conferences. He is the founder and owner of Creative Music Adventures in Seattle, a music school in operation since 2003. In 2016, he released his teaching method in a series of books that summarize his teaching philosophies and approaches that have worked the best with his students over the years. He also began blogging about teaching, performing and recording music in 2016 and his posts have been read nearly 30,000 times.

As a teacher, Michael tries to help teachers and students explore new ways of making music so the art-form can remain constant in our culture – always looking forward instead of back.

Morning Session ~ Teachers Only Workshop ~

- Teachers come enjoy this motivational class. There's always room to learn something new. Refresh your teaching skills! New ideas, new approach, new outlook for you and your students.

Lunch ~ Pre-paid orders only! (Lunch NOT available as a walk-in/or at the door.)

- "✓" (1) choice of the six options. Don't forget to "✓" the Box Lunch for $10.00

Afternoon Session ~ Student Master Class

- Michael will work with (3) three students in various levels: early intermediate, upper intermediate and advanced. We can all learn from watching and listening.

Late Afternoon Concert ~ Michael in Concert
